No surgery – try new machine that breaks down fat

LOSE fat without a strict diet and exercise? There must be a catch.

Not according to Tony Benfield, who says his new venture, a Med Contour machine, is medically approved and already being used in Harley Street clinics.

The entrepreneur, whose business, Body Sculpture, is based at the Weston Centre, in Hawkins Road, Hythe, Colchester, says: "The Med Contour machine uses a low frequency ultrasound to break down the fat cells under your skin, then turns them into bubbles which pass out through your urine. There is no surgery involved.

"It takes a few sessions and gradually reduces the fat cells.

"During our launch we asked for someone to come and test it and we measured this lady before and after. It worked – she lost inches."

Tony explains the treatment continues to work for the next two or three days as long as the client drinks plenty of water.

He says those looking for treatments do need to change their outlook on life and see it as a way to kick start improvements, not just to their body, but their life too.

The Med Contour machine was developed in Italy about four years ago. In the UK it is now offered as a treatment at various locations.
